American Echoes explores the rich tapestry of American choral music from early New England hymnody to modern masterworks. Tracing a wide arc through the nation's choral tradition, it illuminates how American composers have drawn from sacred ritual, civic identity, poetry, folk melody, and moral reflection to shape a uniquely American choral voice. This program reveals a repertoire both rooted in history and alive with relevance for today's world.

The concert features the bold harmonies of William Billings, Randall Thompson's iconic The Last Words of David and his stirring Testament of Freedom along with contemporary favorites including James Mulholland's A Red, Red Rose, Morten Lauridsen's Prayer, and James Erb's Shenandoah, concluding with Florence Price's powerful cantata Abraham Lincoln Walks at Midnight, a moving musical portrait of Lincoln's enduring moral legacy.
